● Brian Little on the ball against Derby's Steve Buckley.

Brian Little

Aston Villa

SCORING the winner in a Cup Final . . . it's what every player dreams of doing.

The ecstasy . . . the emotion . . . the relief . . . they are all wrapped up in that magic moment in front of thousands of cheering fans.

And this week three top stars for whom that dream came true — Alan Sunderland, George McCluskey and Brian Little — re-live their wonderful winners . . . just for MATCH.

...THEY'RE T

It was a kid's dream come true

IT WAS no surprise when Brian Little scored the extra-time winner for Aston Villa in the 1977 League Cup Final — after all he'd already scored nine times in the competition that season.

What was surprising was the goal itself — a tap in from six yards with the Everton defence all at sea which must rate as one of the softest goals to win a Cup Final.

"If I'd missed that one I would have felt like shooting myself," Brian told Match.

Gordon Smith had come on as substitute for the injured John Gidman and with just 60 seconds remaining he sped down the right wing.

"When his cross came over Terry Darracott slipped, probably through tiredness, goalkeeper David Lawson stayed on his line and I just ran on to tap the ball in.

"There wasn't a lot of celebrating. The players were so tired at that stage and it was the sort of game where Everton were always likely to equalise. So we had to get back and defend."

It was Brian's second goal of the game and the one that decided the League Cup after 330 minutes of action.

The Wembley game had ended 0-0 and the first replay at Hillsborough 1-1.

In the second replay at Old Trafford Bob Latchford put Everton ahead before Chris Nicholl and Little put the Midlands men in front.

Then a Mick Lyons bundled goal from a corner sent the contest into extra-time.

"As a kid you dream about scoring the winning goal in a Cup final and when it happens you can't really take it in," added Brian.

"That season was probably my best ever. I steered clear of injury and finished with 26 goals.

"I got a hat-trick in the semi-final against QPR! Two years before that I scored the winner in our 3-2 victory in the League Cup semi-final against Chester to take us through to Wembley where we beat Norwich."

Last gasp Gunners

Alan Sunderland
Arsenal

ALAN Sunderland finished off one of the most dramatic FA Cup Finals ever with a last minute goal against Manchester United.

United were 2-0 down with four minutes to go in the memorable 1979 final, but they clawed their way back with goals from Gordon McQueen and Sammy McIlroy. Everyone watching had prepared themselves for extra-time when Sunderland snatched Arsenal's winner...

"It's my most cherished football memory. I shall never forget seeing that ball go over the line," said Alan.

"As soon as we kicked off after United's equaliser Liam Brady started a move on the left while I made ground on the right. Graham Rix got the ball and crossed it.

"I could see it all the way. At first I thought their 'keeper Gary Bailey would get it — but he missed and the ball kept coming. Then I thought full-back Arthur Albiston would cut it out — he didn't and unbelievably it came to me.

"I knocked it right-footed into the empty net and turned round to celebrate. I knew then they couldn't possibly come back again."

George McCluskey
Celtic

THE CUP WINNERS

Cup winner Alan Sunderland in action.

Goal that salvaged Celtic's pride

GEORGE McCluskey salvaged Celtic's season with a 107th minute winner in last season's nail-biting Scottish Cup final against Rangers at Hampden Park.

Days before the final Celtic had blown their chance of winning the Scottish Premier Division title — at one stage in the season they were eight points ahead of eventual champions Aberdeen.

"The Scottish Cup win really helped us get over that disappointment — and beating Rangers really was the icing on the cake," said George.

The 24-year-old striker deflected a volley from Scottish international Danny McGrain past the stranded Rangers 'keeper Peter McCloy.

"I thought Danny's shot was going straight at the 'keeper — so I threw myself at the ball and managed to deflect it past him into the net.

"It was a tremendous game of football. After the game I was absolutely shattered. It was real end to end stuff — which made a change from the usual 'old firm' clashes which are usually stifled by nerves," said George, who finished last season as Celtic's top scorer with 13 goals.

The game was marred after the final whistle when a riot erupted between the two rival groups of supporters.

"It did put a dampener on the celebrations," admitted George. "The players did not know about the trouble until they saw it reported on the television. We were in our dressing rooms at the time."

'Give me the job, Jock' says Doug Somner

SCOTLAND'S top goalscorer Doug Somner works in a job centre but the biggest task he faces is fixing himself up with the job he wants most — wearing Scotland's striker jersey.

With 37-goals last season and already into double figures this term, that would be reason enough, you would think for national team boss Jock Stein to include him in the side, but so far Doug has had nothing but disappointment.

"I have had a couple of caps for Scotland 'B'," says the 29-year-old who cost St. Mirren £100,000 from Partick Thistle.

"But when it comes to the big time, I seem to be unlucky. I think that every time Jock Stein watches me I have an indifferent match.

"And every time I am doing my job best he is down watching the likes of Andy Gray and Joe Jordan.

"Naturally my big ambition is to pull that dark blue jersey over my head. The truth is I'd play for Scotland for nothing."

Top 'keepers name those players who they think have the hardest shots in the game and this week Manchester City's Joe Corrigan, Chelsea star Petar Borota and Spurs' Milija Aleksic recall some of the rocket shots they have faced.

Steve Coppell, David Cross, Glenn Hoddle, Tommy Caton and Jimmy Case are just some of the players they rate among football's hot-shots.

Now I want to hear from YOU about the players that YOU think have the hardest shots.

Maybe there's a player in your favourite team who has a really power-packed shot. Write and tell me who he is and tell me about a particular shot from him that you remember. Perhaps it was a goal.

NIGHT O

IT WAS just like old times for Everton's long-serving skipper Mick Lyons when some of his former team-mates turned out a team which held the present Goodison side to a 5-5 draw in his testimonial game.

Martin Dobson (2), Andy King, Duncan McKenzie and an own goal from Garry Stanley completed the ex-Everton XI score sheet, while Peter Eastoe, Eamonn O'Keefe, John Bailey, Lyons and disc-jockey Ed Stewart scored for Everton.

The game attracted a crowd of 13,000 — only 9,000 fewer than Everton's previous league match with Wolves, a fine tribute to a loyal defender who has served Everton for 12 seasons, making over 380 appearances, after scoring on his debut against Forest in 1971.

Rix prediction

Arsenal midfielder Graham Rix's promotion to full England stature brought a lot of pleasure to a lot of people — but none more so than Crystal Palace coach Alan Harris.

Harris, former Chelsea, Coventry, Queen's Park Rangers and Plymouth full back, predicted last year that Rix would make the full England team before he was much older.

Black booster

JIM CANNON, Crystal Palace's no-nonsense skipper, marks his testimonial year with a match against a talented All Black team from the Football League on November 25.

The team is to be captain by Cannon's Selhurst Park team-mate Vince Hilaire and provisionally reads: Derek Richardson (Sheff Utd.); Chris Hughton (Spurs), George Berry (Wolves), Paul Davis (Arsenal), Brendon Batson (WBA); Henry Hughton (Orient), Remi Moses (WBA), John Chiedozie (Orient); Garth Crooks (Spurs), Cyrille Regis (WBA), Gary Thompson (Coventry).

Bells for Barnes

WHEN Peter Barnes was given the go-ahead by manager Ron Greenwood, to withdraw from England's World Cup squad against Norway to get married he thought his problems were over.

But then he found himself without his best man for the wedding, team-mate Gary Owen who was reluctantly whisked away by manager Ron Atkinson for a friendly match in Italy with AC Napoli, because of England calls on Bryan Robson and Remi

Moses and injuries to John Wile and John Trewick. "That just about put the top hat on it," said Peter, who called on one of the guests ex-City team-mate Paul Futcher to act as best man for Peter's marriage to Alison Garrathy in Warrington. FOOTNOTE: Owen and David Mills scored in Albion's money-spinning 2-2 draw in front of 24,000 fans in Italy, but said he and the team return shattered by a 12-hour return journey before the 4-0 defeat at Liverpool.

Holiday pals

IPSWICH pair Paul Cooper and Eric Gates and Everton lads Mick Lyons, Billy Wright and Garry Stanley met during a recent holiday in Spain when they all stayed in the same hotel.

Manchester City defender Tommy Caton was also there, as were former Ipswich centre-half Allan Hunter and Peterborough's Mick Lambert.

Hardly surprisingly the guests v waiters football match was a bit one-sided — even though Eric Gates played in goal and Paul Cooper turned striker for the day!

Why my walkout won me an England cap

by Eric Gates

IPSWICH Town striker Eric Gates walked out on the club two years ago and many thought it was the end of his Portman Road career.

But his actions proved to be a turning point and Eric claims if he hadn't walked out, he wouldn't have played for England!

"I would do exactly the same again if I had to," admitted Eric: "It's all worked out well for me in the long run. But for what I did I doubt if I would be where I am today."

Eric was frustrated with life at Ipswich and felt he deserved a continued run in the first team — instead of being in and out of the side.

"When I returned to the club I had a long chat with manager Bobby Robson, I explained my reasons and soon after found myself in the side."

Eric made his Ipswich debut in 1975 but it was not until the 1978-79 season that he earned an extended run in the first team. "I was substitute seven times before my first full match," he told Match.

He still goes home to the North East as often as he can — but this time with full permission from the boss.

"He sometimes worries that I might not come back!" joked Eric: "But now there's no chance of that."

Born in Ferryhill, County Durham, Eric returned home during the close season to get married. His new bride, Ruth, comes from nearby Barnard Castle.

So difficult to settle?

CAROL Ann Everett (16), Stamford Hill, London:
HOW hard was it to settle in London when you first came from Ireland? What do you specially like about being a footballer? IT IS always very hard settling in to a new environment Carol and there were many times in my first year as an apprentice when I felt like running home.

But Arsenal were very good to me and I was allowed back to Ireland every two months. You have to be very determined to get through the first year.

It is difficult to pinpoint exactly what I enjoy most. I love playing and training — in fact the whole atmosphere of the game.

The Clive Allen deal?

BARRY Ellis, Goole, Humberside:

WHAT were your feelings on the Clive Allen transfer? How do you rate him? THE transfer was over the players heads. It was a management decision and did not involve us.

Last year Alan Sunderland and myself had a very successful partnership up front. It was decided to buy Clive to take the pressure off us.

It was soon clear that a system with three central forward players — myself,

Clive, and Alan — would not work.

I think it came down to a straight choice. One player had to go and as Alan and myself have proved ourselves I think the boss decided to stick by us.

Clive will score a lot of goals. He stays cool, he's sharp in the box, and he's a good dribbler of the ball. I rate him very highly.

Disaster could lead to glory

THE MEMORY of last year's disastrous start has helped Ipswich to the top this season.

And now Eric Gates believes that the Portman Road side has the skill and experience to make a sustained challenge for the League Championship.

"We knew that we could not afford to get off to a bad start. Last season's experience is always in the back of our minds," said Eric. At one stage last season they were third from bottom.

"Ipswich have also been lucky with the fixture list. Although there are no easy games in the First Division we have managed to avoid the Liverpool's and Manchester United's in the opening weeks.

"Our first real test was against Aston Villa and we beat them in a thriller 1-0," added Eric.

"Ron Saunders has built up a very useful side. They have a good blend of youth and experience.

"Another side to impress me are Southampton. Kevin Keegan has given them that extra edge.

"Our biggest fear at Ipswich is injuries. If we can steer clear of them we are confident we can win something," added Eric.

Eric has formed a useful understanding with Ipswich's other two strikers Paul Mariner and Scotland international Alan Brazil.

I thought call-up was a joke

WHEN Eric first heard the news of his England call-up he thought someone was playing a joke on him.

"It has always been my ambition to play for England but I never thought I would get international recognition so soon," said Eric, who made his debut against Norway earlier this month.

The small striker — he's just five feet six inches tall — reckons his displays last season earned him his call-up.

His lively buzzing style helped Ipswich build up a marathon 23 games without defeat last season which saw them finish third in the title race.

"Before the Norway game the closest

I had come to international honours was then I made the last 26 for England in youth trials," said Eric.

He was made to feel at home while training for the game because three other Ipswich players — club skipper Mick Mills, Terry Butcher, and Paul Mariner — were also in the squad.

"Having those three there was a great help. Mick and Paul are established England players who know the ropes and they were able to put me at ease.

"Now I am looking forward to success at Ipswich and hopefully a long England future," said Eric.

Tackle a Star

Irish stars have big feet!

KEVIN Collard, Plymouth, Devon:

WHAT size boots do you wear and how many pairs do you get through in a season?

I'VE GOT big feet! I take a size 10. Funnily enough all the Irish players at Arsenal, like John Devine and David O'Leary, all take a big size boot.

I get through two pairs of match boots a season. When they are no good for matches any longer I get them repaired and use them for training.

Stapleton

How long will you stay?

DAVID Herpe, Oxted, Surrey:

HOW do you feel when you hear the crowd chanting your name? Can you assure me that you have no plans to leave Arsenal in the next five years?

I EXPERIENCE a mixture of emotions — I am thrilled and embarrassed. It gives players a great lift to hear the crowd chanting their name. It definitely makes me more determined to play better.

As for your second question, David, I can't answer that. I am very happy at Arsenal and have no immediate plans to move. My contract comes up for renewal at the end of the season and I shall take it from there.

Over and in! Arthur Graham (white shirt) launches himself horizontally to fire wide of Villa's Cowans (10) and Evans.

How Graham lifted Leeds gloom

ARTHUR Graham (Leeds United) v Aston Villa, Football League Cup, Second round (second leg), at Elland Road, September 3, 1980.

GOLDEN GOAL

THE GLOOM that has shrouded Elland Road, for much of this season was lifted momentarily by a piece of magic from Leeds United's Scottish international Arthur Graham.

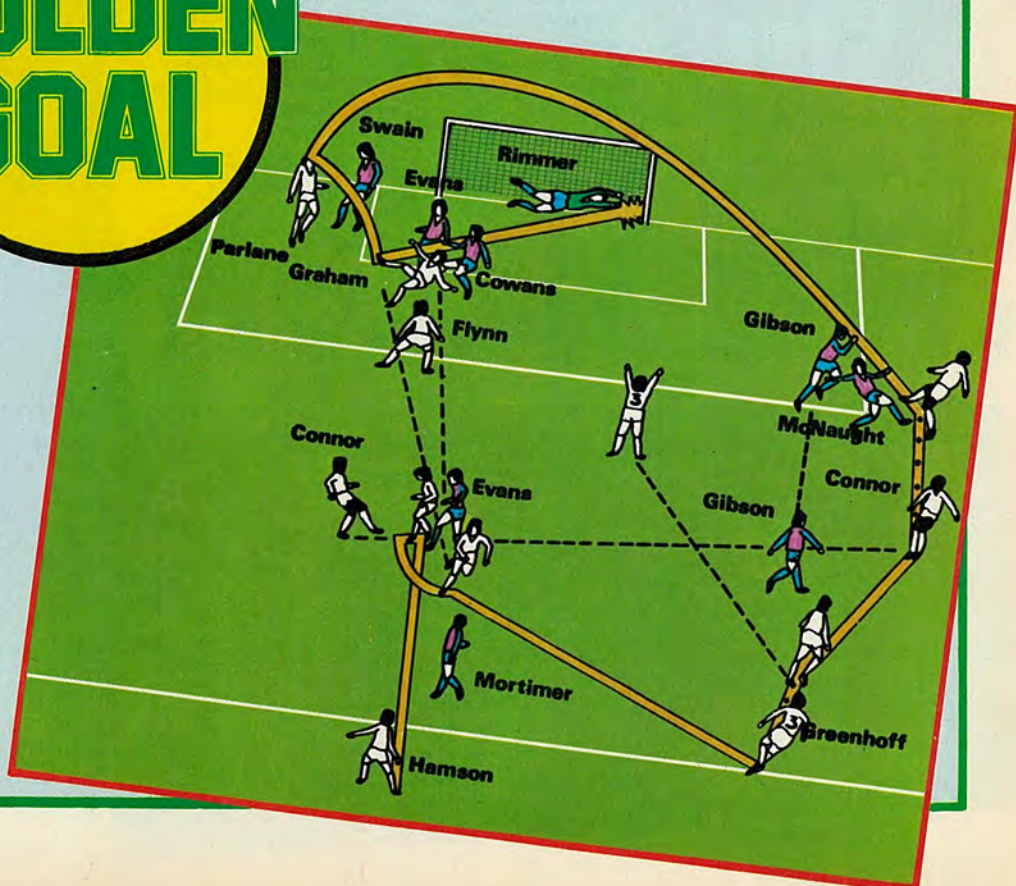

Two goals down to Aston Villa after 97 minutes of this two-leg League Cup tie, the blond Glaswegian put Leeds back into contention with a brilliantly executed overhead scissor-kick.

"The ball was played up to me by Gary Hamson and I tried to turn past Allan Evans, but he blocked my run and I had to play it back to Brian Greenhoff in support," Arthur recalled.

"Terry Connor made a great crossfield run to the right wing and took Brian's pass before getting in a good early cross to the back post.

"Derek Parlane did well to knock it back to me with my back to goal and an overhead shot was all that was on for me," said Arthur.

But Leeds' joy was short-lived — Aston Villa grabbing two breakaway goals.

He gives us space and confidence, says
Tommy Langley

Tommy Langley... QPR's new signing from Chelsea, is delighted to be playing alongside Tony Currie.

"TONY Currie gives forwards like me more room to operate. The opposition mark him so tight that we are given more space.

"It's an experience playing with a player of Tony's special skill.

"He creates so much space and provides a super service for his forwards. In the last few games he has been playing out of his skin.

"His role at QPR is to roam the midfield and spray those long accurate passes that he is famous for. It's a great confidence booster for forwards to know there's someone like Tony in charge of midfield.

"Tony is so good, too, at changing the direction of the game with a telling pass.

"He is always backing forwards up, and is not afraid to go back and defend. I am looking forward to a long successful association with him."

I turned down a fortune to play for England

IT WAS my determination to play for England that stopped me moving abroad to earn a fortune a couple of years ago.

I was all set to join a West German side — Cologne, Schalke and Bayern Munich were all in for me — and I even brought my wedding forward.

But then I sat down and thought about the effect it might have on my England career and decided to stay put.

I know moving abroad did no harm to people like Kevin Keegan, Tony Woodcock and Dave Watson.

But they were already regular members of the England squad, if not of the team itself.

I had yet to play for the senior side at that stage and I reckoned it was going to be very difficult for Ron Greenwood to assess my game if I was so far away.

As it happened things could not have turned out better. Within three or four months of last season I won my first cap against Bulgaria — and scored!

I must have lived that game over in my mind about a hundred times and I don't think that's a good thing.

If I dwell on my good performance that night too much it might harm my international career.

You've got to enjoy it when it happens but then you must put it out of your head.

The ball has just left my boot and is on its way to the net for a goal in my debut for England against Bulgaria — a moment that could give me problems in the future.

I'd never make a manager

I CAN'T see myself cut out to be a manager when the time comes to hang up my boots — but I quite like the idea of being a coach.

I love football so much that I'd like to stay in the game when I finish, although at the same time I'll hope to have a successful business going.

I've already got the preliminary coaching badge and I'll eventually take the full badge that will stand me in good stead for a coaching job.

I say coaching rather than managership because being the boss involves you in a lot of work outside football and I don't think I'd enjoy that.

You've got to think of your wife and family as well. Being the wife of a famous footballer can be great, but there are also lots of lonely times when overseas tours etc take you away.

They might have had enough of that so it would be unfair to take on a job as a manager which can be so demanding.

So chuffed for Rix

FORGET all the talk about 'part-timers' and 'no-hopers' — the Norway team that played England in the World Cup qualifier were no mugs.

That's why the England lads were delighted with our 4-0 scoreline and I was especially chuffed for my good mate Graham Rix who enjoyed such a good debut.

Obviously my delight for the lads and Ron Greenwood was dampened by the fact that I wasn't part of the action on the field.

Ron told me he wanted to play Terry McDermott and that's fair enough by me.

You can only go out on a Saturday and do your best and hope to get picked.

Playing for your country is a big thing in my book — and I think it is with all sportsmen, whether they be footballers, cricketers or whatever.

Stratton on Saturday

Arsenal to cut down Forest

ARSENAL will, I believe, cut down the Forest at Highbury this Saturday . . . and one goal ought to be enough.

Both sides are widely tipped as title contenders again this season and rightly so.

But I fancy the London side to have the better fortune this time around.

Last term the Gunners had their sights set on what would have been a magnificent treble — the FA Cup, Cup Winners Cup and UEFA Cup qualification.

In each case they failed at the final hurdle.

Nottingham Forest, in contrast, landed the European Cup for the second season running despite losing at Wembley in the League Cup Final.

Between them they could virtually have cleaned-up!

England left back Kenny Sansom may have missed the disappointments of last season but he's as eager as any of his new team mates at Arsenal to finish a winner this time.

And he has one word for his new career at Highbury . . . "tremendous."

"My role's the same as it was at Crystal Palace but if anything it's easier with Graham Rix wide on the left.

"There's no doubting Graham's ability and I hope we can help each other's game," Kenny told me.

Today's match will pit the Sansom-Rix combination against Forest's Viv Anderson — all team mates together when England began their World Cup campaign against Norway earlier this month.

"Viv's a very good player, but we'll be going at him as much as possible.

"I think we should beat them," declared Kenny.

"I played against Forest twice last season with Palace and both games were a bit scrappy. We beat them 1-0 at home, but they won quite well at their place.

"I think they miss Trevor Francis, but then what team wouldn't miss a player like that."

'Mariner can be unbeatable' — Berry

GEORGE Berry enjoys making a living from playing football . . . and that's one good reason why Ipswich and England centre forward Paul Mariner shouldn't expect to get too much change when the two clash today.

Explained George: "He's going to be out to stop me earning that living by grabbing a couple of goals, so it's up to me to do something about it!"

But the Wolves defender summed up the size of task he faces today when he added:

"If things go well for him Paul Mariner can be unbeatable. He has things worked out well with Eric Gates.

"I respect every player in a number nine shirt. I've never gone into a game thinking I won't have problems."

Ipswich have enjoyed a better start to the season than Wolves, but it's all about 'on the day' and I fancy a home win.

Added George: "Last season we tightened down and harassed the opposition. This year we have tried to develop a more attacking style and we didn't get it off to a tee straight away."

England? I hope my time will come

FROM the very beginning of my football career it has been my ambition to play for England.

More specifically, to represent my country in a World Cup competition.

I've been capped five times at under-21 level and obviously I hope one day to progress from there and make the full side.

It's going to be very difficult to break into the senior team — always assuming that I play well for United of course.

England's three current first choice keeper's, Ray Clemence, Peter Shilton and Joe Corrigan are all excellent between the posts.

And there will be tough opposition from other young keepers.

But I hope that if I can produce the goods at Old Trafford I can make a stand for the England position in years to come.

After my name had been mentioned in the papers as a possible replacement for the injured Joe Corrigan, it was disappointing not to be included in the full England squad for the World Cup qualifier against Norway at Wembley earlier this month.

Like most young players I am ambitious and to a certain extent I suppose, impatient too!

As I have already said however, hopefully my time will eventually come.

On the club front my main ambition is to win a European Cup winners' medal with United.

Obviously to have a chance of realising that dream we must first win the English League title and that remains our main aim at present.

GARY BAILEY

'This is my soccer world'

Pride is at stake against Big Mal's City

THIS Saturday it's the big one in Manchester . . . United versus City . . . and Old Trafford will be a cauldron of noise by the time 3 o'clock comes round.

The game means an enormous amount to both sets of fans. If we win today our supporters will be kings of the city.

The match has been on the tips of everyone's tongue for the past week, but I'll have been trying not to get too caught up in the off the park atmosphere so I'm in no way blinkered by the occasion.

As the home side I suppose we'll be favourites to beat City, but even though this will only be the fourth derby match I've played in — providing I'm selected — I already know it can be a deceiving fixture.

My first derby game was at Maine Road and we beat them 3-0.

Obviously it was great for me to be on the winning side in my first match against City — especially as it was away from home.

The following derby game was also at Maine Road, but this time we lost 2-0. We had a few injury problems that time but we were up at the top of the First Division while City were down at the bottom!

Our next clash with City finished 1-0 to us at Old Trafford.

But all those results will be forgotten now. It's today's result that matters.

It certainly gets the old adrenalin flowing as you drive to Old. T. on a day like this and of course the atmosphere inside the stadium will be electric.

There will probably be more 'away' supporters than for any other home game this season but our own fans will still be making the most noise.

Pride as well as points are at stake in this one and we'll be doing all we can to make sure it's the United fans who can hold their heads high.

Gary Bailey

Left: Ray Clemence, Joe Corrigan and Peter Shilton in training for England . . . all excellent 'keepers.

Action from a previous Manchester 'derby' as I punch over the heads of City's Tommy Booth and team-mate Martin Buchan.

THE DAY I HIT THE BAR!

THERE'S a great bond between goalkeepers and when relaxing after a game I usually end up having a chat with my opposite number.

We'll probably talk a little about that day's game and any goals that may have been scored and then go on to talk about other things like training schedules or discuss new gloves that may have come on to the market.

The last time United played Liverpool at Anfield Ray

Clemence invited me on to his radio spot after the match.

We talked generally about the game that day, which incidentally Liverpool managed to win 2-0, and we laughed and joked about a fluke goal clearance I made during the game.

I kicked the ball upfield and much to my surprise it got a lucky bounce inside the Liverpool 18-yard box and hit the bar!

19 — Petar Borota (Chelsea)

PLAYERS hit the ball harder in England . . . that's the view of Chelsea's Yugoslavian international goalkeeper Petar Borota.

And one of the hardest shots he faced last season came from West Ham's David Cross.

Petar told Match: "He was about 20 yards out when he hit the ball and although I saved it, the strength of the shot made it very difficult.

"English players in general have very strong shots and I have found it more difficult because the ball is smaller and lighter than I was used to.

"I also remember a shot from Watford's Luther Blissett last season which beat me — it was going so fast I hardly had time to move."

Soccer Hot-shots

Three star goalkeepers name their soccer hot-shots — the players with the hardest shots in football.

n crack'em

(Man City)

"Our own Tommy Caton hits a heck of a ball with his left peg — he doesn't half leather them in training," added Joe.

But for his first choice as one of the hottest shots he's faced, Joe cast his mind back to Peter Lorimer's playing days with Leeds United.

"I remember in one game against Leeds Billy Bremner chipped the ball across and Willie Donachie just got a foot to it.

"The ball went up in the air and as it was dropping Peter Lorimer hit a dipping volley over my head.

"That was one of the hardest shots I have faced without a doubt."

Right: Team mates Joe Corrigan and Tommy Caton. Big Joe has to face Tommy's cannonball shooting.

Coppell's thunderbolt nearly ripped the net

THEY call him 'elastic' at Tottenham but not even Milija Aleksic could stretch to save Steve Coppell's searing, swerving shot.

Milija was playing in a testimonial match between his former club Plymouth and Manchester United.

It took place nearly five years ago . . . but Milija has never forgotten the thunderbolt that left him rooted to the spot.

Milija Aleksic SPURS

"I would definitely rate it the hardest shot I've had to face and Steve the hardest kicker in the game," said Milija.

"He came onto the ball on the corner of the 18 yard box and hit it first time.

"I had taken up a position on the near post, which is where most 'keepers would have stood, but I didn't get anywhere near the ball.

"It went in like a rocket and nearly ripped the net open. I saw it as it left his boot but I didn't see it again until it was in the net.

"I've saved other shots from the same distance, but I've never had to face one as fierce as Steve's."

Hat-trick heroes

Three of football's greatest goal-grabbers reveal how a change of boots brought a change of luck and a memorable hat-trick!

Those made

CAMBRIDGE United fans thought their star striker Alan Biley was out of the game as he hobbled off during the pre-match kick about.

But Alan, who was transferred to Derby County last season, returned to the field with a heavily bandaged thigh to score three goals as United thrashed Cardiff 5-0.

"I have scored three hat-tricks in my career — but that was the most memorable. When I pulled a muscle in the kick-about I thought my chance of playing in the game had gone," said Alan.

But he was not to get out of his afternoon's work so easily and after some quick treatment — and a change of boots — he was back in the action.

"It was the first and only time in my career that I have worn flat-soled boots — and I scored three!"

The match took place in January 1979 and Alan finished the season as United's top scorer with 20 goals.

"I can't remember the first two goals — but the last one will always stick out in my mind. I was clean through the defence and hit a bullet of a shot from 18 yards with my left foot. It flew into the back of the net.

"It's an incredible feeling when the third goes in. I always feel as though I could run all day. I love scoring goals — and getting three in a match is really special."

Alan Biley

Below: Alan Biley — 'bullet of a shot'.

Andy Gray

ASTON Villa were 1-0 down to Ipswich and Andy Gray was having a nightmare.

But a change of boots at half-time brought a dramatic change of luck for the Scottish striker, now with Wolves.

"The boots I wore in the first half were new and I wasn't getting on with them at all so I changed into my old pair," Andy told Match.

He went on to score a hat-trick . . . and one of the best headed goals of his life.

"John Wark was marking me and a cross came over from the left.

"I took off and timed it perfectly. I practically landed on top of John and the ball flew into the net past Laurie Sivell in the Ipswich goal."

Andy's three goals that day in a 5-2 win on September 4, 1976 really set Villa Park alight.

And Villa's fans had even more cause for celebration later that season as their team went on to win the League Cup at the expense of Everton in a three-match thriller of a final.

The very next season Andy repeated his hat-trick magic, this time in the League Cup, with three goals against Exeter in the second round.

boots are for scoring!

Kevin Keegan

"WHENEVER I think of hat-tricks I always recall one I scored during my time with Hamburg," says Kevin Keegan.

"It pleased me in more ways than one. I had one or two personal worries at the time — the main one being that my baby daughter was ill in hospital.

"And to walk out in the Bundesliga match against Bielefeld and bang in three goals really picked me up.

"It was a very ice pitch that day and I decided on a special 'shoe' made by the firm whose boots I always wear.

"Luckily I was right. The ridges and dimples in the soles seemed to give me a better footing than just about anyone else.

"My first goal was a bit of a solo effort. I took a cross on the run and beat the 'keeper to see the ball creep in at the far post... a nice little goal.

"The second was proof that I had chosen the right boots. A defender slipped before he could tackle me and when I shot the 'keeper just couldn't get to it in the conditions.

"I rate my third goal as the best I scored for Hamburg. I received the ball about 15 yards outside their box. I ran at my marker and got past him before taking on and beating two other defenders.

"I had been going right all the time. The 'keeper must have thought I had to go left some time or I would run out of stadium!

"But I kept going right, he went the wrong way and I slipped it in."

Below: Andy Gray — scored one of the best headed goals of his life in a second half hat-trick.

Kevin Keegan gives his shooting boots an airing in Italy.

Programme Guide

BRISTOL City won the 'Best Programme of the League' award last year.

But now their match-day magazine has accompanied the team into the 'second division'.

This season's offering at 30 pence is a big disappointment after last year's superb quality.

The reading matter is nowhere near as informative or entertaining now and the copy we saw committed the cardinal sin of putting Ray Cashley's name to a picture of John Shaw.

In the value-for-money stakes it rates a long way down the list. There are 24 pages with little colour to give it a lift.

Plus points are 'Press Gang', which gives local and national newspapermen, radio and TV commentators their chance to have a say and 'Around the Ground' — titbits about the club and players.

But that's about all. A lot of the other information — 'Diary' and 'Two's Company' tell us nothing new other than what's already been discussed in the newspapers.

And the rundown on the opponents is a bit too involved.

Billy's the kid, Ron!

I FIND it amazing that West Ham skipper Billy Bonds has never won a full cap for England.

I've seen Phil Thompson, the England number one in Billy's position, and I think the West Ham man is the better all-round player.

So come on Ron, get Billy Bonds into the international limelight.

Andrew Brooker (13), Sittingbourne, Kent

Left: Billy Bonds — the West Ham skipper should be in the England side.

● What player currently out of the international reckoning would you like to see in the England squad? Write to 'England', Match Weekly, Midgate House, Midgate, Peterborough, PE1 1UB. We'll send £10 to the writer of the best letter and £2 for every other letter published.

No Crooks? It's criminal

I WAS surprised to see the England Under-21 team for the friendly with Norway did not include Garth Crooks.

He is by far the best striker in English football, as he showed by scoring four goals in Tottenham's first three games.

He also scored a hat-trick in his England Under-21 appearance against Bulgaria. Need I go on?

Ken Lash, RAF Medmenham, Bucks

A case for Jimmy

JIMMY Case of Liverpool should play for England. He has a brilliant right foot shot and his heading ability is good.

His skill and judgement are excellent and his long range passes are as good as anyone's.

So come on Ron Greenwood, give Jimmy a chance.

Keeper's corner

● Alastair Slade

WE ASKED you to tell us why you liked playing in goal. Our postbag produced some interesting replies and we've printed a selection below.

Satisfaction

I ENJOY goalkeeping very much and although 'keepers can't win a match for their team like strikers can I'd never play anywhere else because I would miss the satisfaction of making a good save.

My favourite 'keeper is Peter Shilton because of his consistency and ability to pull off the most spectacular saves.

You just have to think about Nottingham Forest without him to realise what a good goalie he is.

Alastair Slade (12), New Malden, Surrey

Alastair Slade names Nottingham Forest's Peter Shilton as his favourite 'keeper.

My favourite

I BECAME a goalkeeper because I was born with a club foot and I've got a weak kick with my left.

If I was a striker I wouldn't have a hard enough shot to beat the 'keeper or if I was a defender I wouldn't be able to clear very far, but in goal can get by with just my right foot.

My favourite 'keeper has to be Pat Jennings, mainly because I support Arsenal, but also because he always produces important saves — such as the one against Terry McDermott in the FA Cup semi-final replay last season which he turned round the post.

James Swaine (12), Clacton-on-Sea, Essex

Arsenal get best of the swop

I WAS disappointed when Arsenal and Crystal Palace made the Clive Allen-Kenny Sansom swop.

As an Arsenal supporter I'd have loved to have seen Allen in a red and white shirt but after watching the Arsenal v Tottenham game I'm convinced Arsenal got the best deal.

Sansom proved himself a world-class defender, showing determination as well as skill. Allen is a good player but Sansom is better.

Mark Massey,
Ramsey St Mary's, Cambs.

Kop this lot

AS A matter of interest I wondered which of these two teams would win if they met in an FA Cup final at Wembley?

Both sets of players are currently with Liverpool and it just goes to show what a strong pool of players they have at Anfield.

Team A: Clemence, Kettle, A. Kennedy, Thompson, Irwin, Sheedy, Dalglish, Case, Rush, McDermott, Heighway.

Team B: Ogrizovic, Neal, Cohen, Money, R. Kennedy, Hansen, Gayle, Lee, Johnson, Fairclough, Souness.

K. J. Irving,
Stepney, London

● We think you've got to fancy Liverpool to win this one!

OUTRAGED!

If you like to get me going with your point of view write to me, Trevor Haylett, at Outraged, Match Weekly, Midgate House, Midgate, Peterborough PE1 1UB.

I'll pay £5 for 'foul of the week' and £2 for every other letter.

Too ashamed

FOUL
WEEK

I TOTALLY disagree with John Eames (Outraged August 23) who said Trevor Haylett never loses his arguments and would make a great England manager.

You disagree with everything for the sake of it. You are to football what my gran is to rugby!

You couldn't manage a tiddlywinks team let alone the England team. You need a good kick up the backside.

Wayne Smith, Horspath, Oxford

● Mate, your gran must be an expert on rugby.

British Worst XI

I'VE compiled two teams that would do well to compete against each other. One is made up of all the worst players in England and Scotland — and the other of all the big heads.

Worst players: Rough (Partick), Bond (Norwich), Thompson (Liverpool), Droy (Chelsea), Lacy (Spurs), Young (Arsenal), Daley (Man. City), Reeves (Man. City), Latchford (Everton), Hartford (Everton), Power (Man. City). Manager: Malcolm Allison.

Big heads: Burridge (Palace), Mills (Ipswich), Thijssen (Ipswich), Bonds (West Ham), Talbot (Arsenal), Wilkins (Man. Utd), Dalglish (Liverpool), Bowles (Orient), Curran (Sheff. Wed), Rix (Arsenal), Kidd (Bolton). Manager: Brian Clough.

Referee: Trevor Haylett.

Jeremy Elson (14) Guildford.

● I can't make out whether you're serious, stupid or taking the mickey. Your 'big heads' team contains some of the nicest people in the game.

Salute Rangers

MAY I draw your attention to Glasgow Rangers' approach to football.

They're recently spent £10 million on erecting two new stands and are now improving the older stands.

On the field they've introduced a new "all-out-attack" style to their play in a 3-3-4 formation with eight players going forward at every opportunity and getting back quickly.

David Munro,
Beith, Ayrshire

● Rangers' attempts to make life more comfortable and entertaining for the fans only makes Willie Johnston's behaviour in their game against Aberdeen more outrageous. He took their new "all-out-attack" policy to inhuman extremes.

Soccer School

QUICKNESS in bringing the ball under control is important to all players but to the midfielder it is crucial.

And because of his superb skill on the ball, MATCH WEEKLY invited Vince Hilaire, Crystal Palace's exciting young England international, to join our Soccer School.

Commented Palace skipper Jim Cannon: "Vince is a great choice for an example of a player with ball skill. He's the best I've seen in the First Division. His skill is unbelievable, especially in tight situations in the box."

To open his series Vince gives you some tips on control on the chest.

MORE SKILL TIPS FROM VINCE HILAIRE NEXT WEEK.

Chest control

I'M delighted MATCH WEEKLY has given me the chance to pass on some tips to young readers — I know when I was a kid I was grateful for all the advice I could get about the game — and I'm still eager to learn.

Control of the ball on the chest looks awkward but it's important to be able to kill it quickly and get it to your feet as fast as you can to make the pass or create a shooting opportunity.

First make sure your body is in line with the flight of the ball and just before the ball strikes, relax your chest and draw it away so that you cushion the impact.

The faster the ball is travelling the quicker you must withdraw the controlling surface to take the pace and weight out of the ball.

To practice your chest control bounce a ball off a wall until you can almost 'catch' it on your chest.

Vince Hilaire

- 1 Body in line with the flight of the ball
- 2 Spread your arms wide to get balance and widen the target area
- 3 Relax your chest and cushion the impact
- 4 Still concentrating, try to perfect the volley pass as the ball drops

Right: Vince Hilaire in action for Crystal Palace.

It's Fun Time

Miles McGinley, Hemlington, Middlesbrough . . . Two Manchester United fans in conversation. One says to the other: "Are you going to the match tomorrow?" "They don't come to see me when I'm bad," was the reply.

Daniel O'Leary, Canvey Island Essex . . . Heard about Chelsea's new striker? His name is Locksmith. He always gets keyed up before a game.

Jonathan Montague, Burton-on-Trent, Staffs . . . I saw Manchester City on television the other day . . . in Survival.

"I thought we turned around at ten?"
